Friday frights

See foreign films at their most shocking, before Hollywood remakes them into shockers, with WM: Horror

FRIDAY NIGHTS WILL give you chills this month, as The WORLD MOVIES Channel highlights international frights with WM: Horror. From gritty to supernatural, you won't want to watch these films alone.

The terror starts with the premiere of Mexico's We Are What We Are. When a man is killed, his son Alfredo must step up and provide for his family. It could be a classic drama, but for the twist: they're cannibals, and Alfredo must murder for their survival.

In The Matrimony, a woman unlocks a secret room and the ghost of her husband's lost love. This spooky visual feast is set in 1950s Shanghai, and stars Bingbing Fan and Leon Lai.

A haunted house gives a father and daughter a fright in The Silent House, a film from Uruguay. Presented in a single take, viewers can watch the terror unfold in real time.

In Korean director Kim Jee-Woon's I Saw The Devil, a secret agent hunts the serial killer who murdered his pregnant fiancée. Will his thirst for revenge turn him into a monster?

A film student's bike ride becomes a suburban nightmare in 5150 Elm's Way, by French director Éric Tessier. Locked up by a religious psychopath and his twisted family, Yannick (Marc-André Grondin) must battle his captor in a dark game of chess. ✎ CLARE FLETCHER
